Epilepsy Warning

READ BEFORE USING YOUR SEGA VIDEO GAME SYSTEM

A very small percentage of individuals may experience epileptic seizures when exposed to certain light patterns or flashing lights. Exposure to certain patterns or backgrounds on a television screen or while playing video games may induce an epileptic seizure in these individuals. Certain conditions may induce undetected epileptic symptoms even in persons who have no history of prior seizures or epilepsy. If you, or anyone in your family, has an epileptic condition, consult your physician prior to playing. If you experience any of the following symptoms while playing a video game — dizziness, altered vision, eye or muscle twitches, loss of awareness, disorientation, any involuntary movement, or convulsions — IMMEDIATELY discontinue use and consult your physician before resuming play.

*A Missive
from Watson*

My Dear Friend,

The following triad of cases presents the opportunity for you to progressively press and put to trial your powers of discrimination and deductive reasoning.

These exercises will take you from the ruins of ancient Egypt to the resplendence of high society to a young man's romance with war. But, bear in mind that despite differences in the motive, method of operation or milieu of events that surrounds a case, each investigation requires unerring logic as well as strict adherence to the facts.

While you conduct your study in detection, you have available the assistance of both Holmes and myself for the retracing of evidence for a case. However, you determine the route of exploration and line of questioning.

Your task is to glean the most information from the least number of resources. If you gather key facts and are able to answer the Judge's questions correctly, you will learn of Holmes' solution to the case. But miss a single query, and you'll be sent back for more clues.

And now, as you enter upon this adventure in sleuthing, I bid you the best of wishes in your endeavours.

I am your most humble servant,

*Dr. John H. Watson
221B Baker Street
London*

Getting Started

To help you in your investigations, I am enclosing what is called a CD, or compact disc — an amazing little device that effectively storehouses large amounts of information onto a small silver platter.

On this disc, you are provided with recordings of Holmes' and my introductions to the cases. In addition, you have access to all of the resources we had at our disposal during the time of our original inquiries.

In the following steps, I've listed for you the brief instructions you need to make use of the enclosed CD.

1. Set up your Genesis™ and SEGA CD systems and plug in control pad 1. Turn on your TV or monitor, and then turn on the Genesis.
2. Press Start or Button A, B or C when you see the SEGA CD logo. The SEGA CD Control Panel appears.
3. Press Start or Button A, B or C to open the disc tray. Place the CD into the tray. Then press Button A, B or C again to close the tray.
4. Press Start or move the hand cursor on the Control Panel to the CD-ROM button.
5. Press Button A, B or C to begin.

P.S. If the CD is already in the machine when you turn it on, the game will begin automatically after a few moments.

Begin your investigations at the Table of Contents. To make use of any item, move Holmes' pipe stem to the relevant box on the left of an item and press Button A.

Instructions

This item takes you to a list of Holmes' and my tools of the trade. To hear information about any tool, move Holmes' pipe stem over it and press Button A. You may also turn to pages 8 to 11 of this report for my rendition of each tool's benefit and use.

Holmes' Introduction

Holmes himself speaks on the subjects of detecting and detection methods. Following his monologue, you may obtain brief information about eleven important persons and places. To hear each profile, moves Holmes' pipe stem to your choice and press Button A. You may also turn to pages 6 to 7 for additional details.

The Cases

Three of Holmes' most puzzling adventures are offered for your examination and solution. Choose any one to begin your investigations. I have briefly described each case on page 5.

Save Game and Load Game

In the event that you must discontinue a case, you may preserve your current inquiries, and resume them at a later date. Please refer to page 16 for further information.

The Mummy's Curse

12 April, 1889

The Times started it all — calling the killings the outworkings of an ancient Egyptian curse. I accused the tabloid of capitalizing on the superstitions of the populace.

Yet, four men were dead, with the wrappings of a 4000-year-old mummy binding their fates together. Were the deaths the result of a curse or a cover-up?

The Mystified Murderess

4 July, 1888

Her suitor was infuriated: his kind lady had been charged with the murder of a scoundrel, a fortune-squandering bounder, a true cad.

Rumours were that she had favoured the young fellow, but he had frolicked with her sister. It is said that three makes a crowd. In this case, it made a corpse.

The Tin Soldier

10 June, 1890

An initiate of high society. An officer. A collector of treasures sans pareil. He had travelled many pathways throughout his lifetime. This time, he crossed the wrong one.

Although the direct interview of case witnesses and suspects is invaluable, do not forget to consider the following individuals and institutions that offer insight and information that otherwise cannot be obtained.

Henry Ellis, as Foreign News Editor of The Times, has a knowledge of international affairs and an interest in criminal activities that merit both consideration and consultation.

Edward Hall, a most astute barrister, sets himself apart from the others of his profession through his creative handling of legal matters.

Quentin Hogg's practiced deductive mind and experience as a crime reporter for The Police Gazette are a recommended asset.

Sir Jasper Meeks, Chief Medical Examiner, affords keen observational skills and technical advisement that should not go unnoticed.

H.R. Murray is something of an absent-minded chap, yet his expertise as Head Chemist provides connections between physical evidence and the criminal event that are quite valuable.

Disraeli O'Brian, head clerk of the Office of Records, is a virtual walking — or should it be said, sitting — encyclopedia for state papers and legal records.

Langdale Pike, gossip columnist, is a colorful character who renders descriptions that are just as full-toned as the scandalously noteworthy of London.

Porky Shinwell, a one-time resident of Parkhurst Prison, is presently the proprietor of The Raven and The Rat, catering to patrons whose ears are tuned to the dealings of the underworld.

The London Library possesses a remarkable collection of reference works that may prove useful in your investigations.

At Scotland Yard, our main contact, Inspector Lestrade, is more useful for his acquisition of inaccessible information than he is for his correlation of theories with the facts of a crime.

Somerset House holds a sizable assemblage of files on births, deaths and marriages, as well as testaments and wills.

Available to you are a number of resources, described here and represented on the game screen by small pictures called icons. To use a tool, press the D-Button to move Holmes' pipe so that the stem points to the corresponding icon, and then press Button A.

Scoring and Trial

As an aspiring detective, you must cultivate three qualities:

1) the power of observation, 2) the power of deduction, and 3) a broad base of precise knowledge.

So, to test your skills of detection, you will be given an undisclosed number of points for each new clue you uncover. The fewer resources you use, the lower your score will be. Your objective is to gain the most information from the least number of resources.

When you think you've solved the case, select the Trial icon to enter the Courtroom. Listen carefully to the Judge's questions.

- ✔ To answer a question that requires the name of a person or place, open the Directory or the Notebook and select the name of your choice.
- ✔ To answer a multiple choice question, select the response of your choice.
- ✔ If you already know what the question is, press Button A to skip to the answer.
- ✔ To leave the courtroom, press Start. You can continue your investigation and return when you have more clues.

If you answer each question correctly, you will see a cinema of Holmes' solution. Match your score against the master sleuth's. Did you beat Holmes at his own game?
